

The Future of Health and Social Care Conference

25th September 2015, University of Salford, Manchester

The Government is committed to a vision for health and social care that is structured around the needs of patients, both now and in the future. Delegates will explore the need for changes to how we organise and deliver health and social care and treatment that is safe, effective and meets the needs of patients, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Delegates will hear a number of different perspectives and best practice case studies as all those involved in the future of health and social care attempt to rise to the current challenges that mean people who work across both areas have to become more flexible and responsive, working in new and innovative ways to improve quality of care whilst also becoming more efficient.

The Future of Health and Social Care Conference will explore how we can design a new system that is sustainable and fit to meet future challenges. The Conference will address how existing innovative, patient-centred services to develop a comprehensive model of health and social care that meets the needs of patients, now and in the future.
